Wudly Toys: Founders' LinkedIn Content (8 Weeks)

Oct 12, 2026 · @Shreyansh

Eight weeks of ready-to-post LinkedIn content for Wudly's husband-and-wife founders, built from the factory and office shoot. Words in [square brackets] are details only the founders can fill in.

The plan

The founders post 2 times a week for 8 weeks, using photos and clips from the factory and office shoot. One post a week is the main story (below, ready to post); the second is a short photo post or a reshare from the Wudly company page.

- Who posts: both founders from their own profiles. Each main post is written for one of them; the other comments and reshares within an hour.
- When: Tuesday and Thursday, 8:30 to 10:00 am.
- Format: 1 photo or a short video from the shoot, text of 150 to 250 words, 3 to 5 hashtags, link in the first comment (not in the post).

Week	Main post	Posted by	Visual from the shoot
1	Why we started Wudly	Both (joint post)	Couple portrait with toys
2	From a block of wood to a toy, made in India	Husband	Factory process photos (carousel)
3	What safety means to us as parents	Wife	Sanding and quality-check close-ups
4	Building a business with your life partner	Both	"Who does what?" clip
5	The team behind every order	Husband	Team photo
6	5 lessons from building Wudly	Wife	Founder at work
7	How we design a new toy	Wife or Husband	Design desk, sketch next to toy
8	Where Wudly is going next	Both	Walking into the factory

Weeks 1 and 2

Week 1: Why we started Wudly (joint post, couple portrait)

> Two parents. One question. "Why is it so hard to find toys we trust?"
>
> When our [son/daughter] was [age], we spent weeks looking for toys that were simple, safe and made to last. Most were plastic, loud and broke in a month.
>
> So in [year], we started making our own. That became Wudly.
>
> Today Wudly makes wooden, Montessori-inspired toys in [city], India. Every piece is cut, sanded and checked by a team we know by name.
>
> We run Wudly together as husband and wife. Some days that's the best part. Some days it's the hardest. Over the next few weeks we'll share the real story: the factory, the team, the mistakes and what we've learnt.
>
> If you're a parent, a maker, or someone building a brand in India, we'd love to have you along.
>
> #WudlyToys #FounderStory #MadeInIndia #WoodenToys #Parenting

Week 2: From a block of wood to a toy (husband, factory carousel)

> This was a block of wood at 9 am. By evening, it was a toy a child will play with for years.
>
> Here's what happens in between at our factory in [city]:
>
> 1. We pick and mark the wood.
> 2. We cut and shape every piece.
> 3. We sand each edge by hand until it's smooth for little hands.
> 4. We paint and let it dry.
> 5. We check every piece before it's packed.
>
> It would be faster to skip a step. We don't, because our own child plays with these toys too.
>
> Making in India isn't only about cost. It means we can walk onto the floor, see every step and fix things the same day.
>
> Swipe through the photos to see the process.
>
> #MadeInIndia #Manufacturing #WoodenToys #D2CBrand #WudlyToys

Weeks 3 and 4

Week 3: What safety means to us as parents (wife, sanding close-up)

> Before any toy leaves our factory, someone runs their fingers along every edge.
>
> It sounds small. For us, it's the whole point.
>
> As a mother, I know a toy goes in the mouth, gets thrown, gets slept with. So at Wudly we ask one question about every product: Would I give this to my own child?
>
> That's why we [sand every edge by hand / use child-safe paints / check each piece before packing]*.
>
> Parents shouldn't need to read a chemistry label to feel safe. That trust is something we earn one toy at a time.
>
> To other founders making products for children: what's one check you never skip?
>
> #ChildSafety #Parenting #WoodenToys #WomenInBusiness #WudlyToys

*Keep only the checks Wudly really does.

Week 4: Building a business with your life partner (both, "who does what?" clip)

> "Isn't it hard working with your husband / wife?"
>
> We hear this every week. Honest answer: yes, and it's also why Wudly works.
>
> What helps us:
>
> - Clear roles. [Husband] runs [factory and production]. [Wife] leads [design, brand and customers].
> - One rule at home: no work talk at dinner. (We break it about twice a week.)
> - We disagree in the office, not in front of the team.
> - We celebrate small wins together, like the first order from a new city.
>
> Building something with the person you share your life with is not for everyone. For us, it's turned into the best partnership we know.
>
> Couples who work together: what's your one rule?
>
> #CoFounders #Entrepreneurship #StartupIndia #FamilyBusiness #WudlyToys

Weeks 5 and 6

Week 5: The team behind every order (husband, team photo)

> People see our toys. They rarely see the people who make them.
>
> Meet the Wudly team: [number] people across our factory and office in [city]. Carpenters, painters, packers, designers and the person who answers every customer message.
>
> [Name] has been with us since [year] and can tell a badly sanded edge just by touch. [Name] packs most of our orders and adds [the thank-you note / the final check]*.
>
> A small brand runs on a small team that cares a lot. Every 5-star review we get is really theirs.
>
> Thank you, team. This one's for you.
>
> #TeamWork #SmallBusiness #MadeInIndia #Gratitude #WudlyToys

*Use real names only with each person's permission.

Week 6: 5 lessons from building Wudly (wife, founder at work)

> [Number] years of building a wooden toy brand. Five things we wish we'd known on day one:
>
> 1. Parents buy trust before they buy toys. Show how it's made.
> 2. Slow is fine. Our best-selling toy took [time] to get right.
> 3. Say no to most ideas. A short range done well beats a big catalogue.
> 4. Listen to the reviews you don't like. They improved our [product].
> 5. Your partner is your co-founder, not your backup. Split the work, share the wins.
>
> Which one would you add?
>
> #StartupLessons #Entrepreneurship #D2CIndia #FounderJourney #WudlyToys

Weeks 7 and 8

Week 7: How we design a new toy (design desk, sketch next to the toy)

> Every Wudly toy starts as a sketch on paper and a question: What will a child learn by playing with this?
>
> Our process:
>
> 1. Start with a skill: colours, counting, balance, fine motor.
> 2. Sketch it simple. If it needs batteries to be fun, it's not for us.
> 3. Make a rough sample and give it to real kids (ours included).
> 4. Watch, don't ask. Children show you what works in 2 minutes.
> 5. Fix, sand, test again before it goes into production.
>
> Our [toy name] went through [number] samples before it felt right.
>
> Parents: what kind of toy do you wish existed?
>
> #ProductDesign #Montessori #EarlyLearning #WoodenToys #WudlyToys

Week 8: Where Wudly is going next (both, walking into the factory)

> When we started Wudly, the goal was simple: toys we'd trust for our own child.
>
> Today, we [ship across India / have X families playing with Wudly / work with schools]*. Next, we want to:
>
> - [Grow the range for ages 5 to 10]
> - [Bring Wudly to more schools and play centres]
> - [Take Indian-made wooden toys to more homes]
>
> And we want to keep doing it the same way: made carefully, in India, by a team we know.
>
> Thank you to every parent, retailer and friend who has supported us. This is just the start.
>
> #Vision #MadeInIndia #StartupIndia #WoodenToys #WudlyToys

*Use only real numbers and real plans.

Company page posts

The Wudly company page posts once a week (Fridays), and the founders reshare with one line of their own.

Week	Company page post	Visual
1	"Meet our founders": short intro of the couple	Couple portrait
2	"How a Wudly toy is made" in 6 steps	Factory carousel (6 photos)
3	Factory ASMR: 15-second sanding clip	Reel from the shoot
4	Behind the scenes at the Wudly office	Office photos
5	"Meet the team"	Team photo
6	Packing your order, start to finish	Packing reel
7	Why wooden toys? (reuse the carousel we made)	Why Wooden carousel
8	Thank you: a look back at 8 weeks	Best photos collage

For B2B reach: add one line in weeks 2, 5 and 8 inviting schools, preschools and retailers to get in touch ("For bulk and school orders, message us").

Tips and details to fill in

Posting tips

- The first 2 lines decide if people click "see more": keep the hook short and personal.
- Use a real photo from the shoot, never a product-only image, on founder posts.
- Reply to every comment in the first 2 hours; LinkedIn shows active posts to more people.
- Put the website link in the first comment, not in the post.
- Update both profiles before week 1: new portrait, banner with the Wudly logo, headline such as "Co-founder, Wudly Toys | Wooden toys made in India".

Hashtag bank (pick 3 to 5): #WudlyToys #WoodenToys #MadeInIndia #StartupIndia #D2CIndia #FounderStory #CoFounders #Parenting #Montessori #EarlyLearning #SmallBusiness #WomenInBusiness

Details only the founders can give

- [ ] Both founders' names and titles
- [ ] Year Wudly started, factory city, team size
- [ ] Their child's age when they started, if they're happy to share it
- [ ] Which safety and quality checks are really done
- [ ] One real mistake or lesson for week 6
- [ ] Real numbers and plans for week 8 (orders, cities, schools)
